New privacy law: General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR)

NN handles your personal details with care. In addition, the General Data Protection Regulation comes into force on 25 May 2018. It replaces the Belgian privacy law and gives you more control over how your data is used by organisations. The consequences of this are as follows:

1. From now on, you can contact your Data Protection Officer (DPO)

The DPO advises and informs NN on the GDPR and checks that we are complying with the directive. They are your point of contact for any questions relating to privacy. The best way to contact them is by email (dpo@nn.be) or by post (NN Insurance Belgium, F.A.O. DPO, Avenue Fonsny/Fonsnylaan 38, 1080 Brussels).

2. The legal bases and reasons for processing your personal data are not changing

- a. NN manages and executes the contract.
- b. NN complies with the legal requirements, including those relating to insurance and money laundering.
- c. NN retains its legitimate interests, such as providing and managing general insurance services, avoiding irregularities, carrying out direct marketing of insurance products and processing data for statistical purposes.

NN may transfer your personal data to recipients who are connected to your contract(s), on the basis of legal requirements and for processing purposes. The DPO has a list of these.

3. The retention period is limited

NN stores your personal data only for as long as is legally necessary.

4. You have rights

You can view, amend, transfer or delete your data at any time and free of charge. You can also restrict how the data is processed or object to it being processed. Requests should be addressed to the DPO. Include the date and your signature on the request. Please also include a copy of the front and reverse side of your identity card.

For more information, see www.nn.be/gdpr.
